

Use Case

Trade – ERP Implementation

▶ The customer

The young and dynamic company based in Vienna, Austria, has experienced strong growth in recent years. As an active market player, the company has attracted increasing attention in the energy and minerals trading sector through its global activities.

▶ The challenge

In order to meet the increasing requirements, the company needs a business solution that covers the financial area and can be dynamically expanded to include other areas for the company's international growth to be optimally supported by the software.

▶ The solution

The company opted for the Oracle NetSuite ERP solution, with the first step being the implementation of a finance and accounting system tailored to the company's requirements. Supplementary services such as business process optimization, technical analyses, configuration, data migration and testing rounded off the implementation package. In addition, a special training and coaching concept was developed and implemented for users and key users.
